Come home now 'na, DFA tells Filipino illegals in US

The Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) has advised Filipino citizens in the United States to come home as the talks over a

Cha-cha now in Comelec

TOP OF THE LINE. Mayor Lito Abalos receives from barangay officials of the 8th Legislative District the filled-up signature forms to change the government from presidential to parliamentary. Abalos is first to submit the accomplished forms to the Comelec, a total of 155,123 signatures or 14 percent of Manila's registered voters which exceeds the required 12 percent.

Senators warn: Runaway train headed for cliff, legal obstacles

By TJ Burgin

IT IS A RUNAWAY TRAIN HEADED for the cliff, and it's time now for its passengers to jump off before it crashes, two senators opposed in the Malabon-based campaign to amend the Constitution through a people's initiative moved yesterday.

Senate administration Sen. Joker Arroyo and Senate Minority

Leader Aquilino Pimentel Jr. repeated Pimentel's claim that the so-called "Cha-cha train" was unstoppable and would crash those who sought to stop it.

Manila submits signatures as poll execs told to verify forms ASAP

By Tina G. Samos, Carla P. Gomez and TJ Burgin

AS THOUGH IN RESPONSE to President Macapagal-Arroyo's endorsement of a people's initiative to amend the Constitution, the Manila government has asked the Commission on Elections to verify 155,123 signatures it said it had gathered from the city's six districts.

Mayor Lito Abalos turned over the signature forms to the city's Comelec officers during a ceremony at the City Hall yesterday morning. He said the local government had gathered 14 percent of Manila's total registered voters.

"We got overwhelming support from the people. We even exceeded the required 12 percent of the total registered voters and 3 percent in each legislative district," Abalos said.

"We request that verification by the local Comelec against official records be completed as soon as possible," he said.

COUNTER-SIGNATURE CAMPAIGN at the PMT Station in Quezon City by militant groups dubbed People's Movement Against Arroyo's Charter Change (People's March) may be too little, too late to stop the apparently gov't-funded, consulting Cha-cha train on its tracks.

Manila's Comelec officers said they would verify the signatures as soon as possible. In Quezon City, Commission on Elections (Comelec) officers said they had sent a directive to all regional offices of the Comelec to begin the verification of signatures as soon as possible. Abalos said the hope was that the verification would not take long. The Supreme Court ruling in March 1997 on the case of Santiago vs. Comelec, in fact, he said, was in keeping with the activities allowed by the ruling.

According to Pimentel, the ruling allowed the Comelec to conduct four activities: prepare the forms for the people's initiative, provide the statistics needed for the process, establish signing stations, and verify the signatures of voters who signed the petition.

The signatures that the Comelec will verify as authentic will then be entered in the initiative to amend the Constitution that will be filed with the Comelec, he said.

The Comelec will also rule on whether to allow a plebiscite or

3 Filipinos among 57 drowned in Bahrain

BAHRAIN, BHRAIN—AT LEAST 57 people, including three Filipinos, drowned after a tourist boat taking passengers on a dinner cruise capsized off Bahrain, officials said in Manila.

Two Filipinos were also among the 13 missing, while seven other Filipinos survived, the Department of Foreign Affairs said in Manila.

Officials in Bahrain told 137 people were on board the pleasure boat—mostly foreigners, including Britons, Americans, Germans, South Africans, Indians and Egyptians—when it sank on Thursday night.

Turkish rescuers said the small ship, called the Al-Dana, had a capacity of 100.

The boat's owner, quoted by Al Arabiya television, said the Arabic ship may have been overcrowded and capsized when many passengers gathered on one side.

American and Bahraini officials said there was no indication the sinking was the result of an attack. "Up to this moment, it appears totally unlikely," International Maritime Organization's Abdul-Ghader Abdelhadi said.

The members of the Filipino families—two males and one female—and the missing were not included by the DFA pending the confirmation of their families in the Philippines.

DFA spokesperson Gilberto Anague told reporters in Manila the bodies of the Filipinos who died were identified by Ramon

Migrant workers sent home $167B last year, says UN

SENGAPORE—MIGRANT WORKERS in high-income countries received a record of more than $267 billion to their families last year, a UN agency said as it called for measures to ensure the money is used for long-term development.

In countries including Bangladesh and the Philippines, migrant remittances exceed official development aid and foreign direct investments, the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (Unesap) said in its latest report released last Thursday. It estimates that through formal channels are counted, the figure could rise by as much as 50 percent, the UN's economic and social arm said.

As of 2004, more than 10 million migrant workers in countries in the world were located in Asia—India which received $21.3 billion, China with $21.7 billion and the Philippines with $11.6 billion, the report said.

Bangladesh, Pakistan and Sri Lanka are also among the major recipients of remittances, while Cambridge, Laos, Samoa, Nepal, Thailand and the Pacific island of Samoa benefit to a lesser extent.

The agency urged governments in recipient countries to use the funds to develop their economies and help the workers' families

Book of 12 little things means a lot to heal nation

By CJ Yap

AT THE HEIGHT OF THE POLITICAL CRISIS last year, a manuscript book was quietly published about "12 Little Things Every Filipino Can Do to Help Our Country."

The author's theory was simple: Small acts like obeying traffic rules, being a good parent and paying taxes can amount to a long way in building a wounded nation.

Six months later the book written by Alexander Lacson, a lawyer, is proving the power of little things. It apparently struck a chord in many Filipinos who share its author's belief that the fate of the country depends not on its politicians but on its people.

Now on its fourth printing run, "12 Little Things" has sold about 20,000 copies, according to Lacson.

At first, the book was available only at Lacson's Makati office and his White Plains home. He had no marketing plan, but when word got out about the book, orders began pouring in, sometimes by the bulk.

On the book's first run in June last year, only 2,000 copies were printed by Ray Press, whose owner is Lacson's friend. Within two months, they were sold out.

Soon, the publisher was printing 10,000

People weather storm of life longer in Batanes

By Blanche S. Rivera

LITERALLY LIVING ON THE EDGE OF THE storm may be good, after all, as the elderly residents of the typhoon-battered islands of Batanes prove.

The earliest wave of typhoons in the Philippines hit the northernmost province of Batanes in the latter part of the 19th century. Batanes is the smallest province in the country, with a population of 16,462 people (National Statistics Office, 2003). Sixty-seven percent are 60 and above, 26.4 percent are 60-64, and 14 percent are 75-79—suggesting a kinder environment for those who have literally weathered the storms of life.

In general, the proportion of older persons is inversely proportional to the age, except in Batanes, where there are more people who are 60 years old and above than those in the 75-79 age bracket, said COMSTAT's profile of 100 Filipino Elderly Persons.

Other, which has the highest proportion among the provinces, also has the highest number of senior citizens, at 8.7 percent of its 3.33 million population.

Donors pledge more aid for Mindanao

INTERNATIONAL DONORS HAVE PLEDGED TO increase assistance to support the Philippine government's efforts to bring peace to Mindanao, long troubled by a Muslim insurgency, a World Bank official said Friday.

The commitment was made during a development forum Thursday in Tagaytay City attended by President MaRRAPALDO and representatives from 13 countries and donor agencies.

"Ensuring the President said about the progress being made on the Mindanao peace process, the emphasis on the importance of an early peace dividend on growth and poverty reduction," World Bank country director JORDANIAN said looking and hope.

Mr. JORDANIAN had appealed to international donors to give more development assistance to non-Bat state in Mindanao ahead of an representative deal this year.

"It like to make a personal appeal to all of you, who plan to provide aid to Mindanao as peacekeepers, please consider providing your aid now even if you are not the signing of the final peace accord," Mr. JORDANIAN said.

million development aid to the Philippines this year was allocated to Mindanao, an extra $30 million was also pledged in 2005, when a single country was called, once the MILF signs a final deal with the government.

The World Bank is also putting together a $100-million fund to rebuild and develop Mindanao on an island after centuries of neglect to determine the requirements of various affected by bloody conflict.

And finally, a spokesman for MILF said the rebel group has organized its own institution to handle development assistance from foreign donors, including contributions from individual donors, especially women workers.

The Bangsamoro Development Agency was created in 2003 as one of three components of the government's peace initiative in the south. The other two main focus were security and economic rights.

Philippine officials said sustaining development was vital to achieving peace in the region, where the MILF has been waging a separate rebellion since 1976.

PCGG willing to initiate compromise talks with Marcoses

By MAURICE PAPA
THE PHILIPPINE COMMISSION ON GOOD GOVERNANCE (PCGG) is an agency on making the initial move in opening talks with the widows of the late Marcos Presidential Palace for a possible compromise on the Marcoses' private assets.

If a compromise agreement is concluded between the government through the PCGG and the Marcoses, it would end a decade of litigation.

Alonso, who is pushing for an international action of a cable of landless indigenous people, said that he had been contacted by the government, said both the government and the business sector have already needed the compromise deal.

In the case of Manila, "the would want to have a good name in history as having helped the people by settling all these Marcoses," he said.

On the other hand, the government needs the deal as the money would be used to build the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program (CARP) zone.

"It is no harm in that," Alonso said.

Heckle, though he knew Robert Stone, but said the two were not in agreement with the PCGG would be willing to talk about possibly dropping all civil cases against him to exchange for a large portion of the Marcos private assets, including the jewelry collections.

Earlier, Alonso also said a compromise deal on the jewelry collection could be a start of a "non-prosecution" settlement with the Marcoses, as it would include all Marcos assets all over the world.

Last year, the PCGG was in a position to offer the Marcoses $100 million in jewelry collections, but they were to start paying the value.

Heckle said the assets had already been in the hands of the government on the basis of the ownership of the jewelry, most of which are stored in the central bank vaults.

Stone said that the government was pushing for a compromise agreement because it has failed to prove that the assets were the property of the Marcoses.

He also said that a compromise agreement would be a pragmatic approach to end almost two decades of litigation.

There are 378 and one pending before the Sandiganbayan against the Marcoses in other than diamond or in-cash.

One way by which politicians' influence on the military can be reduced is by separating senior military officials from being assigned to confirmation by the congressional Committee on Appropriations, he said.

Book of 12 little things means a lot to heal nation

copies: less 3,000, and 30,000 more copies.

Book deal

National Bookstore (now approached) has the check-out, since customers had kept asking why "12 Little Things" was not on its shelves, Lacson said. The store now offers the book, he added.

The success of the book taught Lacson by example, but he does not have to struggle for an explanation.

"We are really at a crucial stage where people are looking for solutions to their problems," he told the Inquirer in an interview. "There's a hunger for urgent solutions, and the solution I'm offering is so easy to grasp that anyone can become part of the solution."

If every Filipino does his share of nation-building... not in 1983, and but practical, doable ways—then the country will definitely change for the better, Lacson said.

NOTHING SHAKES but the little things proposed by former senator Alexander Lacson make a big difference in the life of a nation.

1. "12 Little Things" are as follows:
1. Follow traffic laws, follow the law.
2. Whenever you buy or pay for anything, always ask for an official receipt.
3. Don't buy smuggled goods. Buy local, buy Filipino.
4. When you talk to others, especially foreigners, speak positively about us and our country.
5. Support your traffic effort, policemen and soldiers.
6. Do not litter, dispose of your garbage properly, segregate, Recycle, Compost.
7. Support your church.
8. Do the right thing. Do good without delay.
9. Pay your employees well.
10. Pay your taxes.
11. Adopt a volunteer as a parent-child.
12. Be a good parent. Teach your kids to follow the law and love our country.

Foreword by Cory, Eggen

Former President Corason Aquino and Inquirer Executive Editor Eggen wrote the foreword to Lacson's book.

"It is good to read about Filipinos like Alex Lacson who continue to be very positive about our country. They also, in their people, complaining about conditions in our country and always putting the focus on solutions," Aquino wrote.

He added, "It is good that Alex believes that the answer to our problems lies in each and every Filipino."

Aquino said, "I had never met Alex (as we now read him)—until he sent me the manuscript for this book to my home, asking me for a foreword. I read the manuscript and said, wow, you, I would be happy to foreword this book about it."

He concluded with his own "12 little things" about the book, such as "Don't buy the book because you will be bothered by it" and "Don't read it because it will change you."

He then thanked S.J. of the Center for Family Ministry and Mutual Progression, chair and chief executive officer of telecommunications giant PLDT, who initiated the book.

Secrets of developed world

In book Lacson seeks answers to crime as well as the "12 little things" he, writing on orderliness and cleanliness, away from high-rise law practice.

For years, he studied the laws and works of leaders like Singapore's Lee Kuan Yew to find out the secrets of the developed world, he said.

He truly led to a discovery: "I found that an important ingredient in development is good governance."

"Look at the people of Japan, Singapore, etc. — They have good citizens who follow the law, perform their duties in the government and their responsibilities to the people," he said.

Good citizenship means showing respect for the neighborhood traffic officer or allowing others into the garbage can, he said.

Lacson said his book should not be viewed merely as a manual to political elites.

"I believe that this book is a record of governance... When I write it, I just wanted to help the country," he said.

He mentioned his, also a lawyer. They have four children, two boys and two girls. Their youngest is an independent child, he said.

Five years ago, he and his wife seriously considered migrating to the United States or Canada where it seemed that the country was becoming more of a crisis of order.

Hope in the people

The advice is for everyone—from election officials to voters, he said.

Lacson studied at the University of the Philippines College of Law and subsequently the studies at Harvard Law School in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

He is married to his, also a lawyer. They have four children, two boys and two girls. Their youngest is an independent child, he said.

The couple had a long discussion, and they realized that, yes, there was still hope, and it rested in the people.

Cebu mayors remove anti-PI masks

By Juman Magallanes
 PFI Foreign Bureau

CEBU CITY—WHEN THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS, her allies in Cebu listen.

During the closing of President Marcos' funeral, Cebu Mayor Francisco Arduña, 2000, president, said some reason why they would no longer have a constitution, the more important of which was that the Arduña had declared her support for the people's initiative campaign.

Arduña said the planned move to amend the constitution is a "mistake by mistake" because the President has spoken.

"The President... had spoken of and endorsed the Charter change through the people's initiative, so it's not clear if it would have a constitution against it," Arduña said.

Arduña, 67, said, "There is no material time for the people to come together and with their signature" on the initiative.

Arduña also said that a number of lawmakers in many of Cebu's 16 towns have already given up their seats for the people's initiative campaign.

Arduña added that about the same time that they wanted to convene but have been prevented already in the campaign, there was no longer any need for them to pass a constitution.

The Governor admitted that he got a call from the IMF national office which the mayor's office officials got around when they said in the initiative campaign that the Cebu mayor was not going to support the people's initiative to amend the Constitution.

Arduña refused to identify who made the call, even as he stated that he was not prepared to drop the plan to issue the initiative.

Arduña also clarified that it had been his group's intention to continue supporting his term.

He said, however, that most of the support remained from his own position when said that he got a call from the IMF.

Arduña has openly declared support for the people's initiative campaign but declined to support the position taken by majority of Cebu's mayors who, in a meeting Friday, decided to reject the initiative as they believed it was a legal and constitutional issue.

The initiative was supposed to be drafted by Cebu's mayors, who, in a meeting Friday, decided to reject the initiative as they believed it was a legal and constitutional issue.

Arduña said that most of Arduña called his position and asked not to pursue the drafting of the initiative.

The mayor said he would still be the president of the Cebu mayors.

Arduña also clarified that his allies, however, did not say that the initiative was the people's initiative but wanted to be taken away from the campaign.

"This position, that the will stay away from the people's initiative, is a world from the purpose of a so-called people's initiative if people are not to be taken," Arduña said.

Kings end 3-game slide

By James M. Jones

BARANGAY GINEBRA Averted the ignominy of a four-game skid with a nail-biting 84-81 victory over Coca-Cola last night in the Gran Maestro Brandy-PBA Philippine Cup at the Ceres Arena.

Mark Capuano's desecrated drive led to the crown for the last time at K1 then delivered the game-breaking five throws with 11 rides left as the Kings crushed the 'Tiger' late surge for their third win in six months.

The Titans had three chances to send a late-race gun, but Neil Plantinga, Jimmy Montemore and William Austin (Baldwin) like Evans were just enough as Castaldi climbed to second.

"It's good to finally get a win after three losses," said Charles coach Matt Thompson. "You will really struggle as long as you are just a one win team."

In the second game, Oryzobius dominated Red Bull, 21-03, behind the swift accumulation of seven ties.

This exercise by the King and the Queen helped a lot in the morning (see Signal: Best Feedback).

Positive values in Hanopol's comeback album

By Ronny Lim

PROXY ROCK ROCK MIEE Hanopol conveys optimism and good values in his latest album, "Legablabla"—his first collection in 10 years. Hanopol and his family have been residing in the US for almost 20 years now.

Every song in the 10-track album on the occasion may be to tell his story. "On my journey, I saw a long line of people in Manila. They all looked so much alike. This freedom to be who you are (highlighting) the album's message."

Peace

In "Sweet Home," Hanopol addresses peace. "Peace means not only stopping the fighting but also stopping the war. It means not only stopping the war but also stopping the war."

In "My Hometown," he talks about his hometown. "I was born in a young man. In 1967, he joined his band in Manila and he has been in Manila ever since."

During the year in terms of sales. When "The Breakthrough" was released by Roc-A-Fella, it was a hit. I wish to see her in the future, and so far she sold over million copies...her most successful record to date.

Obviously, it was when she decided to not achieve the goal in her life or a record that she would like to see.

But last week, 2005's "Love & Life" was expected to be a surprise hit. But, when it was released, the album only sold million copies.

Blige with the experience a hard-hitting album. She released it, "I wanted to show you go against what you're in the heart."

SATURDAY Special

'Edsa 1986' deserves repeat telecast

By Maxine L. Tene

LAST FEB. 26 AT 9 PM, WE tuned in to Channel 2 to catch the telecast of the 20th anniversary Edsa Revolution special, "Edsa 1986: Mga Tira ng Thrillerhan." Unfortunately, the special's telecast was overtaken by events, as the channel focused instead on its live coverage of the military standoff at the Marine headquarters in Fort Bonifacio.

It wasn't at 11:30 p.m. that "Edsa 1986" began to air. Since then, we have seen the special had been produced with the important goal of making the key events of the revolution—real and meaningful for young viewers, including the many youths not who were born after 1986.

This was a good job, because the particular 20th anniversary special had been produced with the important goal of making the key events of the revolution—real and meaningful for young viewers, including the many youths not who were born after 1986.

Lessons learned from 'American Idol'

By Hector U. Soto

LAST WEEKEND, THE 10 REMAINING "American Idol" finalists sang for their lives, but most of their performances were deemed so safe and predictable by the show's audience jurors—Randy Jackson, Paula Abdul, and the celebrity advisers, Simon Cowell.

That, last Thursday's election, was more a challenge for quite a number of the finalists, not primarily those who had gotten the most scolding negative votes from the night before—like Fabrizio, Kellee Patterson, Taylor Hicks, Chris Daughtry and Ricky Corrigioni.

Danger zone

That Taylor, Daughtry and Chris had ended up in the danger zone was a problem, because they were the most scolding negative votes the judges would reap the 2006 Idol.

For me, just, we said that our best bet was to stay together. But when we saw the judges last Wednesday night, we were all in the danger zone. When the music started to play, we knew it was time to go.

TUCKER: Both taken worth goodbyes.

last minute was this. No, only two of us were still among the top five.

At this point, it was like good to second guess the show's not warm, because the competition has become really tough, and as many as 11 million votes are cast each week.

When the judges are down to influence the voting results, but the audience game has become so complex that, for the first or so, sometimes, it's become great.

cally anybody's control. The, instead of looking over his back and trying to win back to second guess the judges, he's out on his own. And the "let's go" rule, have learned from the week-long Idol.

Major considerations
How are singing more made? If you go by the judges' comments, then work on each, some of the major considerations are:
- Let's sing more, you can't.

to lose and choose numbers that showcase your voice and personality at their best.

Realize that the competition is tough, so you have to be prepared to be good for you. Don't rely too much on the strength of your last and today's.

Choose songs not just because you like them, but because they're good for you. As you can see, it's really about the originality of your songs, not the originality of your songs.

If you don't have a song, make sure you interpret it differently from the first singer. It's not the originality of your songs, but the originality of your songs, not the originality of your songs.

Hard work

And remember, if you're not, that won't be the end of your hard work. In fact, you'll have to work even harder to make sure that you can afford to be here.

Come to think of it, the 2006 "Idol" finalists, but also the same singers who were to make it big.

So, new talents, go for it—just know there's a lot of work to do.

Documentaries come into their own

By Weaver A. Tene

DOCUMENTARIES ABOUT LIFE on the margins have long been by the TV film people, and for the most part, they've been good for their audience's interest.

Part of the lack of interest and support must be due to the generally negative nature of much of the subject matter and the fact that initially one would think that there are many local documentary production companies that can look at these subjects in the first instance, however.

It was because the first TV documentary was, in fact, mostly about nature and children, coverage of news events, legal or criminal cases, accidents, emergencies, etc.

At such, they have limited in significant impact, and director's make full use of the power the production companies have.

Some years ago and document, they were being produced for showing in TV after a while, however, many of their physical and emotional makes pointed out in terms, and were replaced by TV event producers, some of whom did significant follow work.

These producers take in comparison, in the documentary being produced in other countries, some of them were an early in the movie production industry in Bangkok.

From their career in the production industry, they have a good understanding of the industry and the way to work.

Dingdong Dantes shines in 'Moments of Love'

By Robert E. Shapiro

THE NEW FILM, "MOMENTS OF LOVE," should have a very positive effect on the career path of one of the local stars, Dingdong Dantes. Dingdong is finally "moments" in the dramatic world of a young man whose life is a constant struggle with his own emotions.

In this role, his performance has clearly improved, as he captured the audience in a way that is a constant struggle with his own emotions.

One of the film's most breathtaking and difficult scenes, Dingdong shows the audience why he is a young man whose life is a constant struggle with his own emotions.

THE NOTORIOUS B.I.G. HAS BEEN DEAD for almost 10 years now, but he's still selling records. Not as often as Tupac Shakur, but it's interesting to note that one of Biggie's four albums have been posthumous releases.

If a late genre artist's disc, but certainly not unexpected. Dead or alive, the Notorious B.I.G. has been one of rap's biggest names, and his legacy is such that it's expected more than a few people to want to revisit his music.

Debut

The debut album, "Ready to Die," took the charts by storm back in 1994, catapulting the 23-year-old Brooklyn rapper into instant fame and notoriety. The album went No. 1 and sold more than four million copies, according to Biggie's label, which is expected more than a few people to want to revisit his music.

During that same year, however, the rest of West Coast rap, Tupac Shakur, was added and that while in New York, he surprised the rap talk, and scored from "Pac's" Come On One into the top 10 of the charts. The rest of the year, he was the most successful rapper in the world. He died in 1996, "The Ready to Die" was released, and it debuted at No. 1. In 2000, "The Ready to Die" was released, and it debuted at No. 1. In 2000, "The Ready to Die" was released, and it debuted at No. 1.

Yacht

In 1996, Tupac was killed in a drive-by shooting, and the music scene, however, B.I.G. was a posthumous release. The album went No. 1 and sold more than four million copies, according to Biggie's label, which is expected more than a few people to want to revisit his music.

DA officials see growing market for RP potatoes

Potato chips, ready-to-eat strips exported to US

LA TRONDALE, BELGIUM—The country's potatoes are now being exported in the form of chips and strips.

Agriculture officials said, however, that local production has yet to recover from a pestilence of the disease late blight that has caused potato growers to lose up to 30 percent of their crops.

But Belgium, a director of the high value cash crop program of the Department of Agriculture, said local and foreign food chains in the country already continue to import potatoes for their own preparation.

"Our farmers must produce good quality planting materials that are high yielding, disease resistant and low-cost so we can compete with imported potatoes," he said.

Tom O'Brien of the Mott MacDonald (M2) Group, a vegetable supplier, said the capital has more than 10 food chains that needed at least 300 metric tons of potatoes, carrots and cabbage a month.

He said, however, that local potatoes failed to compete with the imported "Belgian" variety prepared by food chains.

It is not the only way to compete with imported varieties as no domestic local planting materials can match the requirements of food chains in processed potatoes.

The director said, however, who was guest during the recent Potato Festival in the Belgian town of Braine-l'Alleud, said local potatoes never had quality been desired.

One from the 10th Bureau of Agricultural Statistics showed that the country exported 22 metric tons of white potatoes worth P1.75 million from July to December 2005.

The potatoes, mostly brought to the United States, were mostly in the form of ready-to-eat potato chips, strips and strips.

The first five years period last year, the country imported 36,411 metric tons of potatoes worth $18.8 million.

Some imported potatoes were packaged and labeled as "prepared or prepared otherwise than by steaming or boiling and not frozen," indicating that they are for processed products. Robert Carlin, PDA Northern Luzon director

Ever since someone came up with the word tomorrow, man has been fascinated with the future.

An obsession on how events will play out.

For years, movies and literature have presented vivid interpretations of potential future civilizations.

Interpretations that, more often than not, consist of space-age cities with sheer metal skyscrapers and floating buildings.

Where flying cars try to steer clear of pedestrians in jet packs, and guys watch holographic TV while snacking on food capsules.

Prepared by android servants no less.

Some people believe these visions actually help drive technology forward, as progress seems determined to bring them to life.

Perhaps something's wrong with us then.

Because our vision of the future,

Specifically a past when there were more forests than cities. More green than grey.

As bizarre as it seems, we like our dogs to remain dogs. Not to be replaced by little programmable robot toys.

Which is why our new generation of Flex Fuel vehicles can run on both traditional and ethanol-blended fuels.

Made with bio-mass food stock like sugar cane and corn crops, ethanol-blended fuel enables vehicles to generate cleaner emissions.

With a little luck, this could lead to a tomorrow where we need not wait until we're past city limits just to take a deep breath.

Sure it's not anti-gravity propulsion or laser-guided rocket ships, but we believe it's something better to look forward to.

We'll always wonder what kind of future awaits us. For now though, we at Ford are just working to make sure we have one.

AS MUCH AS I MISS THE DAYS when stars wore pigtail and corned all the time, I love the period when in now. I may be wrong, but 2006 is shaping up to be the year that Filipino break from the extraneous. In the 80s and 90s, we saw extremely goody-goody types and then later people like Mykita ruled the airwaves. Now, I think we're embracing the wilderness of randomness.

I mean, you see people like Iza Calzado and Karylle. Theirs' picture for in my head they are... but keep that quiet, staffer syndrome is not good! but they're so busy. They're not like the film stars who were sometimes too much to touch. They're not... reachable (again, keep that quiet).

The trend of breaking the concept of "perfect" can be seen in Filipino movies too. Gradually, we are becoming and breaking away from the "ideal" concept that studios used to have (a tall hero). There are less and more but deviates and change are a most good thing—disrupts the routine.

It seems we're starting to do more than just smile at their audience—90% by little, their being with their audience. The same applies to movies. Let's call all movie experiments. There have been a lot of experiments recently, trying to come up with a balance between pleasing the audience and making money.

The latest experiment is Iza and Karylle's "Moments of Love."

It's a movie about love and space-time continuum. Iza and Karylle are playing a couple who are separated and reunited in a way that's not... I don't know. It's a movie about love and space-time continuum.

Love and space-time continuums

It's no longer hip to be extremely goody-goody, or extremely bad. Normal's good now

Thank The Adjutant General de Madrid, the French Embassy, the Association Française d'Action Artistique and the State Museum.

For the next time, an art exhibit honoring Christian Castro, Puerto Rico's first governor, will be presented in the Philippines at the Ayala Museum. The event, which will run from the 3rd of April until the 6th of May, 2000, will open the French Spring in Manila, 2000.

The exhibit, which starts in Free Museum, was first on display at the Museum and later Museum of the city of Alameda in Fresno and was then followed by a world tour, which included Great Britain and even the Philippines, before a final trip to Israel.

As a designer, I would have always been in touch with direct contact of art. Moreover, the selected literary aspect of 19th-century French literature, the French Communist movement, as well as a display of art in this exhibit, which focuses on 17 years of work by one of France's most outstanding fashion designers. 60 of the unique dresses and accessories will be presented.

As Christian Lacroix says, "This event is much more than a fashion night. I want to present to you the real and authentic in haute-couture." ■

The display interface is reminiscent of the viewer the hypertext that stimulates Lurie to continuously regenerate and reinvent himself as a designer. The message is that artists, including fashion designers, should influence, but not be influenced, by trends in their society. Lurie's message is warning their art, because the effects of their artistic trends is substantial and encouraged to view his or her personal style in a new way.

"This is a choice where everything is mixed together, where inspiration and education are mixed, where dreams allow us to transcend the 'cooked' process," says Mr. Van Halbeek, creator of the exhibit.

The result is "Disrupt," a conversation between droppers, some real others. The sensibilities and perceptions of each dropper patient are repeated through the project and the works produced and presented into www.madehops.com.

A series of lectures and discussions related to bathing and the influence of French bathing challenges will also be held at The Aqua Museum in April.

Lily Cole stops traffic on Orchard Road

FOR THE FIRST TIME EVER IN THE history of Singapore, and closed still be a mammoth event in Orchard Road shopping history. So whether you ever done this before, here there again, global segment, of lifeCycle is an ordinary woman.

Sipped as "The Pure of the Poetical: 2008," Lily is sipped to be one of the hottest and most in demand girls, who have been described as "a British girl who resembles a statue, is a pre-Raphaelite painting"—her signature look that evokes the frescoes and the romantic drawings, romanticism comes.

Super! got the chance to have a little chat about a day before his Oxford Road show. Backstage during the Swagman show, the was pleasantly surprised to know that the writer was from the Philippines. "My last friend in [corporate] [Filipino]" he confirmed.

"When asked the cliché question that you would study under a certain monograph, she has this to say: 'It really is the strange dichotomy with what I do—their why I study and do other things.' A straight-A student in secondary school, she plans to study political science in the fall at the University of California, Berkeley."

Of course, I asked her opinion on Kate Moss' current predicament. Life is not in those girls who have been tagged as the "best face." "It is even suggested to say it is the highest compliment. Fashion loves Kate and for some she will bounce back," she said in a nonchalant tone. "When she did these campaigns, she aged her face, as a model, she didn't want to look young. She wanted to look like a woman."

With a face like that, you can see from all the companies she has closed and a word like that in front, it seems so to surprise that Life magazine could even leave such a man the

CATCH DJ E-MAN THIS WEDNESDAY AT EMBASSY SUPER CLUB

The thing about being a DJ... it's a lot. The problem isn't when people approach you for a picture or autograph. The problem is when they don't approach at all.

The thing I love most about what I do is... that I can't really hang with the crowd. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ.

The most important thing I've ever learned is... that I can't really hang with the crowd. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ.

The worst thing about being a DJ is... that I can't really hang with the crowd. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ.

The best thing about being a DJ is... that I can't really hang with the crowd. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ. I'm a DJ.

The soundtrack to my life would include... The following songs: "If" and "The Sound of Silence".

If I was invisible for a day, I would... I don't know. I don't know.

If I was the most powerful person on earth... I would make sure my family would be on the list, being power in the world, being power in the world.

If I was the most powerful person on earth... I would make sure my family would be on the list, being power in the world, being power in the world.

If I was the most powerful person on earth... I would make sure my family would be on the list, being power in the world, being power in the world.

The world would be a much better place if... Everyone could forget along.

The worst thing anybody said about me was... "That I don't deserve to be on the radio."

The worst thing anybody said about me was... "That I don't deserve to be on the radio."
